Leadership at three levels

- Getting your career off to the right start-finding the right job, strategizing, building good habits
- Professional development, growth, avoiding commoditization
- Leveraging your skills, contributing and building, legacy

Why is leadership important for radiologists?

Who should lead radiologists?

Controversial with physicians and other STEM professionals

One school: Radiologists should stick to their craft and leave the business and leadership work to others

Second school: Radiologists are elite professionals who do difficult, esoteric work and should be led by their own
