Female Managers and Gender Disparities: The Case of Academic Department Chairs

Abstract

Appointing female managers is a common proposal to improve women's representation and outcomes in the workplace, but it is unclear how well such policies accomplish these goals. I study the effect of female managers on workforce composition, the gender pay gap, productivity, and promotion in the context of academic departments. Using newly-collected panel data, I exploit variation in the timing of transitions between male and female department chairs with a difference-in-differences research design. I find female department chairs reduce gender gaps in publications and tenure for assistant professors and shrink the gender pay gap. Replacing a male chair with a female chair also increases the number of female students among incoming graduate cohorts by ten percent with no evidence of a change in ability correlates for the average student.

“...female department chairs reduce gender gaps in publications and tenure for assistant professors and shrink gender pay gap. Replacing a male chair with a female chair also increases the number of female students...”

Leadership: Commitment

- Role model inclusion
  - How do you run a meeting?
- Habituate, include in all discussions (faculty and practice meetings, committees, council meetings, recruiting)
- Diversity committee and leader... and resource
- Beware of tokenism and minority taxes
- Allyship and sponsorship
  - Addressing your biases
- Bystander to upstander (teachable moment)

Leadership: Commitment

- Aggressively (yes, a male gendered word) address harassment and microaggression
- Which includes a strong understanding (acceptance) of its prevalence

Diversity Engineering

Recruit for Diversity

- Leadership charge to committee
- De-bias job postings
  - Changing the default
  - Avoid male-gendered language
  - Social media
  - Consider alternate postings (AAWR, ABWP)
- Broaden candidate pool
  - Genders engage differently
  - Go beyond your network

Recruit for Diversity

- Diverse selection committees
- Implicit bias training for committees (done right)
- Structured interviews
- Learn about the candidate before they arrive...and tailor interviews accordingly
